B Students spend extra classtime low off

Although classes were shortened to 50 minutes this year, students managed to find time during classes to write notes, catch up on needed sleep and gossip with friends.

"For most of my spare time in class, I sleep, or I catch up on homework because I would rather spend my time at home sewing," said junior Elaine Flores.

Writing notes seemed to be a natural part of students' days. Through notes, they caught up on the latest news and let boyfriends and girlfriends know the hours didn't pass without thoughts of them.

"Sometimes, I spend my time writing notes to my girlfriend," said junior James Brucer.

Kicking back during extra classtime made the day feel a little less stressful for some.

"Sometimes I like to act silly with my friends," said junior Adoria Mosley.

Although there were very few students who were given blow off time in classes, most took advantage of those relaxing moments.

In every few classes, someone always seemed to break the tension and get in a few laughs. This person was usually referred to as the class clown.

These clowns always captured the most attention because they looked stupid doing that same old stunt or telling that same old dumb joke.

Junior Michelle Bean defined class clown as "somebody who is always talking back to the teacher and always making people laugh."

Mike Anderson, junior, had his own idea of a class troublemaker.

"It's the type of person that doesn't take school very seriously," Anderson explained.

Sometimes, through, teachers couldn't help but laugh at these pranks.

Junior Mike Ramsey recalled, "Seth Krooswyk got up in class one day and imitated Mrs. Carstensen for two minutes before she did anything."

Whether things would ever get serious in class, students never had to worry about getting a good laugh during the day.

D Students get the thrill of the road riving

Driving. The time in life that every teenager anxiously waited for. Just the thrill of being behind the wheel sent many 16-year-olds into a tizzy.

But it all started at the license bureau and taking that dreadful test. It was one of the worst experiences in junior Andy Budack's life.

"My father taught me how to drive, and we didn't work on parallel parking. That is probably why I failed my driving part of the test the first time, through," said Budack.

There was always the chance that something could go wrong even if every precaution was taken. Junior Kiesha Green took a chance and ended up in trouble.

"I didn't even have my license yet, and my dad let me drive to Service Merchandise. I parked far away from the other cars. Sure enough, when I came out, someone had hit my car," said Green.

The chance to sit behind the wheel excited most every new driver. But getting past the test and minor car accidents also caused some anxiety attacks.

Juniors try to scam their teachers

Excuses

Excuses, excuses, teachers never wanted to hear them.

Forgetting homework was always a prime time to use excuses. Junior Stacey McSwine tried to get extensions on homework.

McSwine said, "I would tell them that I could go home and get it at lunch."

Some teachers kept students after school to catch up on work. Not liking that punishment, many tried to get out of it. Junior Melissa O'Connell needed such an excuse.

O'Connell explained, "I told one of my teachers that I had a doctor's appointment so I wouldn't have to stay after."

It was a wonder how many teachers actually believed some of the ridiculous excuses students used.

Junior Monica Busovsky told her Algebra II teacher that she didn't have the tools to complete her assignment. "I said I forgot to take my calculator home. Hey, it worked," said Busovsky.

This year, students seem to go beyond the "my dog ate my homework" excuse.

or food

We needed it to function properly and simply to survive. It could have been hot or cold, come in a variety of colors, and, most of the time, it smelled.

Food. With a lunch hour bumped back 30 minutes and some of us skipping breakfast, food occupied many fourth-hour thoughts.

"I love food because it keeps your energy up," sophomore Kevin Polus said. "Once, I washed a car for three donuts. I was so hungry!"

When students were hungry, they may have found themselves doing desperate and ordinary things for food.

"I drilled holes in some quarters and tied a fish line to them. I did this so when I inserted the quarters into a vending machine, I could pull the money back out after I got the food...and then do it again. But it didn't work," confessed Bran-

Whether munching on fundraiser M&Ms during class or swarming 7-11 during lunchtime, students found the sustenance they needed.

Fitting in

Moving from the junior high to high school was ranked as one of the most stressful experiences of 1993-94 sophomores. No longer were the sophomores the oldest and biggest kids in school. And, they lost their big lockers while facing new lunchtime decisions.

Julie Stucky, sophomore, said, "I like some teachers better, but the lockers are terrible. The free lunch was awesome. It (the free lunch) was way better than having to stay in the cafeteria for a half an hour."

She added, "I just feel shorter than everyone else. But maybe that's because I am."

Other new sophomores felt accepted from Day One.

Sophomore Alana Robles said, "I like it better. I felt I fit in better, and I get to go to dances like Turnabout."

It may have been hard at first, but once sophomores got used to having older students around, they did fine.

Sophomore Brian Daugherty summed it up.

"It's really not all that different."

M Valuables some how disappear issing

Stepping up to the cashier eager to buy the new release by Smashing Pumpkins, Geoff suddenly noticed that his $20 bill was missing. Panic hit. His entire afternoon was ruined. Where could it have gone?

Losing items was just one of the frustrating situations that students encountered on bad days.

"I was at the mall, and I was going to buy a CD. I was ready to take out my money, and it wasn't there. I checked all my pockets, and it wasn't anywhere. I got real mad and left," said sophomore Geoff Hudson.

Not only did students lose money, but they also lost valuable items, whether they were expensive or possessed some sentimental value.

"I was in Mrs. Rice's class, and I took off my 14k gold ring because we had a lab to do. I didn't want to get it dirty. When I went to go put it on, it wasn't there. I looked all over, and I couldn't find it. My mom still doesn't know about it," said sophomore Sara Miller.

F Working towards a perfect shape itness

Getting fit was potentially the most difficult accomplishment for a busy teenager.

If a student wanted to get in shape, he should have been on a strict workout schedule, but finding the time was unreal.

"I bought a membership to Match Point, but I'm never able to go there because I'm always at baseball practice. I end up reading magazines about working out instead of doing it," laughed junior Jeff Carroll.

Aerobics became a priority for sophomore Jennifer Smith added aerobics to her weekly program.

"I usually do regular aerobics two times a week," said

Smith.

Then, there were those students who didn't have to do anything to stay fit. Sophomore Tim Degard was a great example.

"I stay in shape without having to do anything," said

Degard.

Even though some students worked to stay in shape, most were never satisfied with their bodies. But then again, each person had his personal vision of the perfect body.

Teachers going out on the town Saturday

When the weekend finally hit, students were no longer concerned with their teachers. They were too busy thinking about their own weekend plans.

Relaxing at home was a popular way for both teachers and students to spend their Saturdays.

"I sit on the couch and watch 'The Comish,'" said Mr. Dick Reyome, vocational education.

Mr. Bill Birk, history, agreed.

"Usually, two out of four Saturdays my wife and I stay home and watch television or rent a movie," said Mr. Birk.

Other teachers spent their Saturdays doing activities with their families.

"Saturday night is usually tennis night for the family, and late at night, the family goes grocery shopping," said Mrs. Margie Keithley, home economics.

Every teacher had their own idea of a perfect Saturday night.

"I would go to down town Chicago, have a nice dinner and see a live stage show," said Mr. Birk.

No matter what was done, weekends gave everyone a small vacation from school.

Vehicles

Family trucksters to sports cars

Imagine driving around town in a new car, one completely paid off. Among students and faculty, the adults seemed to be the only people who could realistically accomplish this goal.

While some teachers purchased cars as reliable transportation, others purchased them as investments in fun.

Mr. Dave Smith, assistant principal, drove his sporty '87 Ford Mustang GT Convertible in this year's Homecoming parade.

"I was looking for a 'toy' to use in the summer. I was into older cars but decided that the Mustang would be reliable and have pep and speed," said Mr. Smith.

After finding one type of car reliable, other faculty members purchased the same type of vehicle time and time again.

Mrs. Judy Surovek, English, bought her most recent car in 1992 and based her decision on similar cars she owned.

While many students might think teachers look for family trucksters and dull colors, a survey revealed that even our faculty preferred red.

MONEY...JUST HOW FAR CAN IT

STRETCH

With a minimum wage job, just how much can a teenager afford to spend on entertainment? With the high costs of movie tickets, concert tickets, and CDs, most of the students at GHS found that the majority of their paychecks or their parents' paychecks went to entertainment. Exactly what did we do to keep busy?

From school-related functions, such as basketball and football games, to outside entertainment, such as concerts and movies, the typical Griffith student manages to find something to do every weekend.

Some students tried to keep their spending at a minimum. They might even have tried to start the night earlier like junior Tom Spudic.

"I usually go out every other weekend to the movies or something. I also work some on Sundays so it takes away from my free time. But when I go out, I usually spend $10 or so for the evening. If I am with my girlfriend, I save money by cooking her dinner instead of eating out," said Spudic.

But student plans did not always include their "significant others." Many liked to hang out with their friends.

"Usually on the weekend, I work a little, and the rest of the time I spend hanging out with my friends. We go to the mall or to the movies or just hang out at someone's house," said Megan Caron, junior.

Wherever they decided to go, whoever they decided to hang out with, GHS students made sure that they made their weekends worthwhile.

pin me

He stretches the skin and pins a clamp on it. In the clamp, there is a little hole through which he inserts a hypodermic needle. Then, he pushes it in and out. For the next week or so, the skin is red and sore. The earring must be kept covered so that it doesn't snag on something and rip the earring out. The only risk is a serious infection.

Although this fad had not quite reached GHS, it had become a reality for a few. For some, it did not quite turn out as expected.

"The place I went to did not have the right stuff to do it so they used the ear piercer. It was fine for the first two weeks. It was just painful. Then, it started to hurt really bad so I looked at it and I could not find the earring. I thought it fell out, but later I found out it was swallowed up in the hole. They had to pry it open because the skin started to heal over it," explained senior Jaime Korzeniewski.

Maybe body piercing did not appeal to some, but the tattoo industry had come a long way. Even though it involved a tricky, sometimes painful procedure, a number of GHS students had or planned on getting tattoos.

When a tattoo was done the artist penetrated two of the five layers of skin. The sizes and shapes of the tattoo designs varied greatly.

"I thought it fell out, but later I found out it was swallowed by the hole"

"I plan on getting a tanzanian devil biting down on a soccer ball," explained senior Joe Potesta.

Whether students were brave enough to try body piercing or tattoos, they had to make sure they thought their purchases through carefully, considering that both could be permanent.

annel shirts, Doc Martens, faded jeans, the "grunge" look.

Whether they were big and baggy or form fitting, jeans played a big role in everyone's wardrobes. For most, comfort was key while others just wanted the "in look." Some popular jeans were Levi's and Guess.

The way a person shopped for jeans also varied. Some looked at the price and others looked at the brand name.

"When buying a pair of jeans, I usually look at the way they fit and the style. I like Gap jeans because they are comfortable," said Harmony Keyome, junior.

But jeans were not the only fashion must. Many students put small beads on outfits to capture a 60s look. Popular accessories among girls were tight necklaces worn around the neck, better known as "chokers."

Watching the different styles that popped up at GHS was interesting. Some students put an emphasis on their styles and others decided to go with that "I don't care" look. Whatever they chose, they were sure to leave their marks.

A few BROKEN RULES

Whether sitting in the bleachers in the icy snow or in a hot, stuffy gym, Panther fans and cheerleaders backed their teams through deserved victories and devastating losses. Words of encouragement rumbled through the stands during shocking wins, like the football team's victory over Whiting in the pouring rain, and they cheered on the boys basketball team at the overtime sectional championship against Lake Central.

Pure dedication, intense training, and team unity not only proved successful through victories, but these team characteristics kept spirit pumped at all times. The girls cross country team proved that by holding sleepovers and get-togethers to build friendships. And despite a rocky season, the boys swim team encouraged team pride by making team t-shirts.

Although teams accomplished goals in the new Lake 10 Conference, a few individuals stood out by either representing GHS in state competition or making All State and All Conference Teams.

In order to build team unity and prove themselves in a new conference, GHS athletes and coaches tried some untraditional approaches and broke a few of the rules.

Hysteria

Slow start turns itself around

Staring straight into the eye of that rival player he's been waiting 12 months to tackle, the quarterback called the play and the team was in motion -- CRUSH. What strength and agility it took to be a master at this game. Football masters were appropriate labels for seniors

Nate Guy, Chad Sutton, John Smith and many other Panthers. Guy capped off his senior year with a nomination to Conference, Area and State for his grid iron talent. Sutton and Smith showed their areas of football expertise when they received Conference awards, and Sutton received All-Area recognition.

Guy commented on his last year on the GHS team. "I had nothing to lose this year, so I gave it my all and did everything to help the team," he said. "We were a new team in a new conference with a new coach; nobody expected us to turn the tables mid-season. Everyone doubted us, but we didn't doubt ourselves. And so, we ended with a winning season."

The Panthers of the grid iron sure did turn around. With a few losses in the beginning of the season, many fans had lost all hope, but Coach Russ Radtke and his new team demonstrated pure confidence and determination. They turned their losing record around and ended up winning two Sectional games.

Spinning and twisting in the air while keeping an eye on the water isn't exactly easy; however, junior Aimee Willis sure made it look that way. Willis, for the second consecutive year, placed in the State finals.

Willis commented on her ability to master the diving technique and what it took to reach her goals.

Aim High
Hard work and talent bring victorious season

"It sure wasn't easy. I've worked all year round on my diving for the past few years, and it finally is starting to pay off," Willis stated.

Willis, however, wasn't the only swimmer/diver to have an outstanding season. Seniors Jamie Govert, Angie Gilespeie and Amy Hill and juniors Kristina Pikus and Valerie Webb were just a few of the girls who proved that the Lady Panthers swim team was no joke.

The girls placed respectively at Sectional and Regional meets along with Willis who placed third in State. Govert commented on her achievements at GHS.

Govert said, "I set out in the beginning to do my absolute best since it's my senior year, and I've chosen not to swim in college. I've done so. I placed in post-season meets, and I've just basically felt I had done my best to help the team."

Along with several other sports teams at GHS during the 1993-1994 season, the girls swimming/diving team definitely made a splash.

New coach and underclassmen take shape

The whistle blows. Wiping sweaty palms on her shirt, the server stares intently at the far corner, tosses the ball into the air and slams it over the net, hoping for an ace.

With a new coach and a team of mostly underclassmen, the Lady Panther volleyball team sure had their work cut out for them to reach that perfection.

Coach Cara East, the new coach, showed great determination in reforming the team. She commented on her first season.

"With the success of the volleyball team last year and the loss of so many seniors, I knew my job wouldn't be easy. I knew, however, that with the girls moving up from my J.V. team last year that we'd be fine, especially with the new conference," she stated with optimism.

The girls did just that. They ended the season with a split; however, one of their wins was quite significant. For the first time in years, the girls surprised most with a win in sectional competition.

Jo Nahod, the only senior and co-captain of the team, stated her feelings about the team as a whole.

"We lost quality seniors from last year, and many girls who played in the past didn't come out for the team so at first no one thought we'd do that great. After sectionals, however, we proved everyone wrong."

Underclassmen, such as juniors Emily Bacan and Kasey Biscan and sophomore Jessica Furman, definitely showed their abilities to "dig or die."

Having few seniors showed determination showed impressive talent, leadership, and a genuine love for the game. Junior Loreen Batinic commented on the girls' season as a whole.

"We may not have had a wonderful year, but considering all of the people we lost, we really showed our young talent and aggressiveness," said Batinic.

Also impressed with the season and effective on the court were senior captains Daniel Rettig and Jada Mardis, who both received All-Conference awards. Together these two girls turned the court upside down.

"I went out and gave it my all, and so did everyone, regardless of grade or experience. It was an okay year, especially a good concluding year for me," said Rettig.

Juniors Kim Stanford and Batinic and sophomores Jessica Furman and late showing Lori LaPoza and Sarah Mazzocco contributed to the standard success of the team. All of the girls really knew the meaning of teamwork, and it showed in the end.

The grappling Panthers had an improving season compared to their 1992-93 performance. Senior Rick Lane said the team had quite a good season.

"We had a strong start with 10 straight wins. There were a few losses toward the end of the season; but Quenching Grapplers quench thirst for a victorious season overall we ended on a good note," he said. Senior Aaron Pollock agreed and commented positively on the team's experience.

"I think we did well this year. We finished with an 11-7-1 record, which was better than the previous year. The underclassmen got plenty of experience on varsity, so in the next few years, the team should continue to improve," said Pollock.

Not only did the team work hard during the season, they started a freestyle wrestling club, according to sophomore Ryan Gootee.

"The free style club will help keep our players in shape as well as help them to improve and advance their moves," explained Gootee.

A few years ago Griffith wrestlers were never heard of; yet, because of the youngsters' talent and the upper classmen's efforts, the master grapplers of tomorrow began to shine through this year.

As swimmers took their marks on the starting blocks, poise, control, and determination took over.

This year's GHS swimmers tried their best to have a successful season. But, things didn't work out as well as they had hoped. Despite their efforts, the team couldn't come out on top.

Junior Brad Chandler said the team had a decent season, but it could have been better.

"I suppose for most of the season we did alright, but we lost a couple meets that we really shouldn't have," explained Chandler.

In sophomore Matt Govert's eyes, the lack of seniors was a factor in the team's performance.

"At the beginning of the season, we had a rough start because people weren't working up to their potentials. There were no seniors to set a good example for us so we had no leadership. Nobody seemed to step up to the challenge," explained Govert.

Govert added more words on the end of the season.

"When post-season came, we all worked really hard so we could do well. A few people stepped up to be leaders, and we basically ended the season on a good note. We didn't do too bad in Sectionals; we came in fourth place," concluded Govert.

When it came time for sectionals to begin, not only did the team pull together, but each swimteam member seemed to gather team spirit by shaving his head for about the fourth year in a row.

Unbelievable Overachievers turn uneasy season completely upside down

Garrett Blahunka and Neil Irvin, they turned their rough season upside down when they came within two points of being Sectional champions.

Irvin commented on the final season loss.

"The game just slipped away before our eyes, and there was nothing we could've done differently. We showed everyone we could do it; but I guess it wasn't meant to be," stated Irvin.

Though the season started on a down side, the Panthers stuck it out and showed determination. Senior leadership was key this year, and All-Conference seniors Blahunka and Irvin led the team where it hadn't been in a long time...within seconds of a Sectional Championship.

I not only had to eat Kangaroo ribs, but my room got robbed by the maid and she stole some underwear I had bought for a friend. On top of all of this, I left my completed economics report on my bed in the hotel and was forced to rewrite it when I returned to the U.S.A."

Cheerleading definitely consisted of more than just getting the crowd to spell out "Panthers." Strong dedication is what it took to stand out in the crowd.

1993-94 was much harder for the squads because more was expected of them from their new sponsor, Ms. Amy Schmidt, who stressed discipline.

Shannon Bopp, senior, said that there was a lot

Impression more work than previous years. "This year had so much more work because so much was expected of us. We all had to do our part, but it was something we could definitely do," commented Bopp.

Exciting the crowd, the GHS cheerleaders also brought something new and exciting to their routines... an awesome array of mounts, which got the crowd more involved in the games and lifted school spirit.

Roxanne Luptak, junior, said the new mounts were a positive addition to their routines.

"We did advanced mounts which got the crowd involved in the games and added fun," Luptak said.

Experiencing a new training program -- which consisted of running, crunches, different stretches, pushups, and jumps -- also brought added improvement to the sport of cheerleading.

With a little exercise, hardwork, and strong dedication, the cheerleaders pulled off a successful year.

Younger athletes show their wills to dominate

As the gun explodes, her body jerks off the block and all the practice she's done mentally and physically either dominates or fails. In track, this sprinter never got another inning or another touchdown or another shot during her meet ...it's do it or she's done with it!

Freshman Jessica Meece and junior Roxanne Luptak didn't need a second chance. They both received First Team All-Conference awards, and just as in cross country, Meece dominated the track field to travel downstate for the second time in one year. Meece's Coach, Karen Whitfong, commented on her.

"Usually, there's always someone that sticks out of the crowd with a little more talent or courage or something, but Jessica's got it all, and no one believes she's got it all at such a young age. Not only does she have concentration and ability, but she now has experience...and she's a freshman," stated Whitfong.

Meece, surprisingly, wasn't the only freshman to dominate the upperclassmen. Freshman Deanna Westerfield also placed highly in meets throughout the year and showed her definite ability to hustle.

If the Lady Panthers did that well in competition with freshmen leading the pack, look out '95, '96, and '97!

He's running constantly with an opponent on his back and digging deep inside for that second wind to keep him going.. it's not just any game!

To be a master at soccer, players must have more than desire; it takes strength, agility, coordination and passion for the fast paced game.

The Panthers must have had all of these qualities and more. With the loss of many seniors from the previous year, the '94 Panthers were a very young team yet didn't seem to lack talent, just a little experience. The Panthers leading scorer was only a freshman. Meanwhile, sophomore Adam Zondor and junior Jason Castel were named First Team All Conference players followed by senior Rick Lane who received All-Conference Honorable Mention and the team MVP.

Junior Shawn Myers commented on the season.

"We did really well this season, considering how young we are and thanks to the change in Conference. Since mostly the whole team plays in out-of-school leagues now, we're all expanding our experience levels faster, so even though we were young, we excelled," commented Myers.

The Panthers had a terrific year and ended with a winning season.

Delicately, she tosses the ball up into the air and as it descends... SMACK! It's time to play ball.

Playing ball is exactly what the '94 Lady Panthers did. They defended their Sectional Championship and once again had many All-Conference award winners. Nancy Jamison and Kelli Steiber received first team awards, also. This year, not only were competitive traditions continued but the less serious ones were also. Such traditions included Rice Krispie treats and going to Olive Garden. Senior Keela Gootee commented on her last tennis season and the fun the team experienced.

"Before most of the games Tim (Maluga) would bake us Rice Krispie treats. And every year if we win Sectionals, we went to Olive Garden before Regionals. It was so fun, and it pumped us up too!" explained Gootee.

The Lady Panthers claimed the Sectional championship for the second year in a row and went on to win the first round of Regionals but suffered a loss to top ranked Munster in the second round.

While surrounded by complete silence, he approaches the hole, and with all eyes on him, he aligns the shot to perfection. Then, when the tension is at its thickest, he putts with the highest of expectations.

Some people may think of golf as a weak sport and some don't think of it at all; but, to the seven guys who came out for the golf team this year, it was definitely in their minds as an intense sport with great meaning. Coach Larry Parker states the shock he encountered when two new players

Simplicity Expectations met and much, much, more signed up to for the team.

"I expected Rob (Clark), Brian (Grcevich), and John (Nalepa) to come out again, but when Bob Blessing and Tim Degard came out for the team, I was pleasantly surprised," said Mr. Parker.

Not surprising was the success of senior Robert Clark. Although the team didn't advance after Sectionals, Clark was able to advance to the Regionals and Semi-state in La Porte where he missed going on to State by only one stroke. Clark commented on his defeat.

"It was a very stressful day because not only did I have to worry about golf, but I had to be at graduation in time for the ceremony. I had so much on my mind I actually didn't even realize I was so close to advancing to State," commented Clark.

Track and field excellence shows power

As the official nods, he knows all eyes are on him. He lightly jogs with a slight strut and ascends in the air hoping to clear the bar...YES!

For senior Chad Sutton, pressure was his middle name. However, he obviously thrived on it. To excel in one sport was one thing but to dominate another was incredible, and he did exactly that.

Sutton owned the track field for the second consecutive year in Sectionals, Regionals, and on down to State competition.

Coach Russ Radtke commented on Sutton's success. "Chad is an outstanding athlete, and he has worked for everything he's received and will receive when he moves on to college athletics," said Coach Radtke.

The dark horses in the GHS track world included the long distance runners, like junior Dave Varichak. Also a surprise were sophomore Ryan Gootee on the pole vault and junior Fred Rauscher running long distance.

Rauscher commented on his success.

"I did well when I really needed to in the season. I started out average and then peaked right around Conference time and ended up placing in three or four events at the Conference meet which helped us win the Conference Title," stated Rauscher.

Bonfires, t.p.ing, cookouts, slumber parties, and shaving cream fights usually don't make anyone think of softball — unless they attended GHS.

teams ranked in the state. The Lady Panthers weren't simply winners on the softball diamond, however. The girls really pulled together in the end and became very close which made their team domination even greater. Junior Emily Bacan commented on the season.

"This year was the best, and it just won't be the same ever again. We were a team on the field and thereafter, also. We won almost every game, and we all won some very close friendships along the way," said Bacan.

Sophomore Nikki Neighbors agreed.

"I will never forget the times we had this year. It didn't matter who you hung around with or how good you were, you were a part of the team and you knew it. We really pulled together, especially when Lynn had a slumber party after our Sectional victory and a bonfire the night before Regionals, and we became a team even more. It was great!" exclaimed Neighbors.

The Lady Panthers proved they were destined by beating the Number One, Number Four, and Number Eight teams in the state, and five out of six infielders received All-Conference awards.

With bases loaded, two outs, and a pitcher ripping apart at the team's stamina with a full count, the Panther first baseman delivers...do or die.

Every baseball player encountered similar situations but how many could actually pull through. This year's baseball team showed how much stamina it took when Every member of the team showed determination, hunger and talent when they gave Coach Jim Anderson his 400th career win and much more to smile about.

"It was always a goal of mine to have 400 career wins under my belt, but it couldn't have happened with a better ball club. These guys were great on and off the diamond. They were so excited for me after the win they tp'd my house," laughed Coach Anderson.

The Panthers ended the season with a recognizeable record, but a Sectional Championship slipped by when they came up a little too short and fell to Morton in the final game 2-1.

The pack ascends with power to prove who's truly the best. Yearning to get ahead with their enduring efforts, these girls must have been stronger in will than most might ever imagine..

Working hard was on the minds of the girls in cross country.

Sweet Success

Close friendships carry girls to successful season

Senior Jamie Benson thought that it was the best season so far. "The team did great. This is the first year that we've won meets," said Benson.

One reason the team did so well this year was due to the success and motivation of freshman Jessica Meece.

Humor and closeness played a big part of their season. They had a sleep-over and went to haunted houses.

"I would actually make plans to go out on the weekends with the team. I think of them as great friends, as well as teammates," commented Amy Taylor, junior.

Senior Dana Navarro added some superstition and humor. She wore the same socks at every meet, even when she was unable to run.

"I wore the same socks every race. I never washed them, even after the muddy races. It was a 'lucky thing.' I didn't think of it as being that gross," Navarro said.

The girls had their best season ever thanks to their hard work. It took them all the way to Regionals.

"I set out in the season to get my time under 23 minutes and 30 seconds, and I ended up running under just 23 minutes," said Belcher.

Also improving throughout the season was junior Fred Rauscher, who accomplished his personal goals and had a fun time with the team as well.

Rauscher commented, "I noticed so many improvements in my performance, and we had so many exciting things that happened throughout the season. We also defeated five teams, including a perfect score vs. Whiting, and we had a lot of fun scaling Oak Ridge's hill. Coach Zemen was the best too!"

The guys season ended pretty evenly -- some wins, some losses, some fun!

Frustration

Through it all, the guys realized their talents for the future

A constant back and forth battle until the end...what a game! Power, strength, talent, and...endurance.

At the beginning of the season, the Panthers sure didn't think one of their players would be a Conference pick; but, they were definitely proven wrong. Though their record might not have been great, the team of mostly underclassmen sure set out to impress. Junior Scott Doctor received a second team All-Conference award, and sophomore Ken Rudzinski showed his oncoming talent while just missing an award by one vote.

Showing optimism about the season and the years to come, junior Chris Miller shared his opinion.

"We might not have had the best record; however, we beat L.C. Next year, we will have more experience and we'll do much better, so I'm looking forward to improving in my senior year," Miller said with excitement.

Rick Lane, the only senior on the team, commented about the team and its efforts in 1993.

"As a whole, our team didn't do that great. We lost many close matches and didn't have much experience, but we had a great time, and the underclassmen can't wait to improve for next year," Lane said.

All-in-all, the team came together, and in the end, the guys had fun and accomplished individual goals and are looking forward to the future.

"I like playing on J.V. because I get more playing time and experience. When underclassmen play on Varsity, they usually don't play as much as they would on J.V. and they see much more bench time than playing time, so it's just not worth it in my eyes to play varsity."

wanted more support from the fans.

"I like playing JV because it's a lot of fun and a whole new experience compared to playing as a freshman. I just wish that fans would show as much support for us as they do Varsity. When we play, the fans are close to none, but when the Varsity game comes around, everyone starts to show up," Zabek stated with frustration.

As a member of the JV wrestling and football teams, sophomore Michael Devitt agreed.

"Fans, Ha! No one is ever there. Most people work on Mondays, but they probably think that there's nothing to see," Devitt commented.

All in all, these determined athletes were dedicated to their teams; yet, many hoped to see a few more faces in the stands sometime in the near future.

Junior Todd Thirion enjoyed improving his hockey and soccer skills by playing on various leagues.

"I play out-of-school teams to improve my soccer skills, and since Griffith doesn't have a hockey team, I play hockey simply because I love it," said Thirion.

Also a junior and involved in out-of-school sports is softball player Jennifer Rossner.

"Many of us from the school softball team play on traveling teams during the summer. It's fun and provides excellent competition," commented Rossner.

Several others engaged in sports programs outside of school. Senior Robert Clark played golf on his off-season which helped him win an MVP award both his junior and senior years. Also, many of the baseball players wouldn't have dreamt of playing baseball less than seven months out of the year.

Sports had always been America's pastime; however, they became GHS's all-time activity.

WHY

Nancy Kerrigan, the United States gold medal favorite for women's figure skating in the 1994 Winter Olympics, was attacked after practice on Jan. 6, 1994, by an unidentified assailant. Nearly a month later, an anonymous phone call to the authorities pointed to Kerrigan's rival, Tonya Harding; her former husband, Jeff Gillooly; her bodyguard, Shawn Eckardt; and two hired men were arrested in connection with the crime.

Although some believed that Harding was not behind the attack, others demanded her disqualification.

"I definitely think Tonya was behind it the whole time. I don't think that she should be allowed to skate again," said senior Michelle Wayo.

the ATTENTION

continues

The sports world seemed to become more and more controversial everyday. And, GHS had its share of sports controversies.

Angry parents complained at a school board meeting that basketball coaches were apparently "putting down some and not starting others."

"I thought it was stupid what the parents did. It got to the point where my teammates thought it doesn't matter if you win or lose, it's if you get in or not," said senior Garrett Blahunka.

The girls tennis team also added to the controversy. One member was not happy with the coach's actions, so she wrote a letter to the athletic director, Mr. Jim Bartlett. The plan to get a new coach did not go very far as a meeting with Bartlett revealed that most of the girls supported the coach and others agreed to give him another try.

"...it doesn't matter if you win or lose, it's if you get in or NOT."

No MORE "AIR" TIME

ON OCT. 6, 1993, THE WORLD'S BEST BASKETBALL PLAYER AND ONE OF ITS MOST FAMOUS ATHLETES ANNOUNCED HIS RETIREMENT. MICHAEL JORDAN MADE THE BASKETBALL WORLD CRUMBLE. HE STRIPPED THE LEAGUE OF ITS MOST RECOGNIZED NAME AND ROBBED IT OF A BREATHTAKING ACROBAT. JORDAN CLAIMED HIS RETIREMENT WAS NOT A RESULT OF HIS FATHER'S MURDER. IN FACT, HE SAID THAT THEY DISCUSSED IT.

ALTHOUGH MANY PEOPLE HAD THEIR OWN OPINIONS OF WHY JORDAN RETIRED, BULLS FANS MOURNED.

"I THINK HE WANTED TO RETIRE BECAUSE HE WANTED TO SHOW EVERYONE HOW MUCH HE STINKS AT BASEBALL. BUT IT WAS HIS DECISION, AND HE WANTED TO RETIRE," SAID SENIOR DOM ROMANO.

MANY SAID WE LOST THE BEST ATHLETE IN PRO BASKETBALL, BUT MAYBE JORDAN WILL PERFORM AS WELL ON THE BASEBALL DIAMOND.

adjusting AFTER CHAOS

Although living in a small suburban town of about 18,000 which some students thought to be a bit on the inactive side, we all found it impossible to go through a day without relying on the community. Business owners and residents, whether across town or next door, became important factors in everyone's lives.

The community supported the school and the students no matter what. When it was time for the SADD Lock-In or the DECA Walk-a-thon, not only did businesses donate money, but they also gave tons of food to supply club members with enough energy to walk that extra mile or stay awake for more than 24 hours.

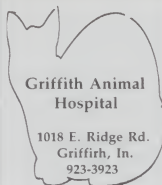

In addition to furnishing people with food essentials, area businesses filled our Turnabout flower orders, supplied hang-outs after football games, and satisfied certain teenage hunger cravings during lunch.

Without the community, who would have given students jobs to earn money for college, dates, concert tickets, Great America get-aways and even Prom.

With students demanding extra ketchup and making last minute calls for floral delivery, Griffith businesses and residents found themselves adjusting after chaos.

For EVERYONE who took some time to know me, especially Kate O, Mimi, Michelle, Doug, Berni, Jacey, Becky, and Linda. If I think about the fun times I have had, I drift away at times, the memories are locked in my heart. From our party parties to our crazy nights in the bar - it's been great!! All of you meant everything to me. I will always remember our times, and I wish you the best of luck on whichever path you choose to take.

Kate-O, thanks for getting me through those "Hate everyone" days. Michelle, life wouldn't have been complete without our crazy 8 year friendship. And Mimi, do I really have to say how much you mean to me? You guys deserve the best so believe in yourselves and go out and get it!!

Remember and laugh at our crazy times..... [T.B.'s, NewKids, banana jumps, Big Lots, recycling bins, puking on baby blankets, jitty parties, activities night, s'miths, s'miths, and the Magic Bus!.....I love you all! I can't believe we made it! 94 rules Chris, go out and GIVE THE "P."

Love and B.F.F.,
Lynnie

to adjust

Due to frigid winter weather, schools throughout the region were closed. The extended weekend caused the first day of second semester to pass without stress while students spent trying two days keeping toasty. But, when the State indicated that Indiana schools must make up those missed days, the year-end calendar was extended and senior graduation plans were turned upside down when the date was pushed back.

But after the senior banquet, juniors and seniors seemed to forget about graduation chaos and got together to celebrate the year-end. The party was cut short, however, when the authorities showed up along with a yellow school bus.

Bonding also characterized the girls tennis and softball teams as they enjoyed tping, bonfires, and rice krispie treats to usher in their Sectional titles.

Although GHS students faced new obstacles this year, they seemed to make a few minor adjustments, flash that attitude and decided to either fight the majority or enjoy going along with the flow.

The 1994 Reflector was printed by Herff-Jones, 6015 Travis Lane, PO Box 10, Shawnee-Mission, KS.

Reflector Volume 53 was the first to be produced in the new J-Room, S107, with 12 Macintosh LC II computers.

Yearbooks originally sold for $30 and escalated to $40 for those who procrastinated.

All body copy is in 12 pt. Palitino, and captions are in 8 pt. Palitino with the exception of the theme copy, which is in 20 pt. Times and the dividers in 18 pt. Headline fonts include: Times and Koffee; Theme; Times; Student Life; Helvetica and Palitino, Academics; Helvetica, Organizations; Helvetica Album; Palitino, Sports.

Lynn-for keeping us all sane by going crazy, for keeping the J-room laughing, for instant zoos, and for finding OTHER uses for the computers.

Kat II-for making whatever was dumped on you into a masterpiece.

*Sub*flower-for never giving up even after nearly every one of your spreads crashed on deadline.

Jo-for keeping the darkroom under control even when all of the photographers ganged up on you and for all the gossip/rip fests.

Ryan (Ceasar), Mike, Jason, & Shawn-for being so irresistible that it was hard for me to yell at you, for being able to come up with better excuses than me, and for taking good pictures all of the time and great pictures once in awhile. A special thanks to Mike for being such a great singer.

Dana-for scamming that microphone so we could drive everyone insane and pushing me to become even more than I thought I could.

Kim-for being able to pull stuff out of the air just in time to make deadlines and for the great gossip.

Amy (Lard)-for not killing me when I changed your section a million times and for the saltine contest.

Shauna-for finally figuring out what a pica was and never totally freaking out.

Tina, Trisha, Mandy, Alyssa, & Kristina-for helping out wherever you were needed and doing a whole hearted job.

Susan Taylor-for being such a great help, even if it was on the days we had parties, and for liking Barney, too.

Mrs. Newton-for having faith in me, for forgiving us when we did "bad things," for still having the energy to spend extra time with us even though you were pregnant.

Courtney-for graciously letting us use your negatives and for not killing any of our photographers.

Everyone-who helped us out in any way or didn't kill any staffers when they were stressing out because of deadlines. We couldn't have finished this book without you.
